Indiana Philanthropy Alliance
Donors new and old stepped up in 2018, making $957,989.69 in gifts to the Community Foundation of Jackson County.

Those gifts surpassed the Foundation’s strategic plan goal of $500,000 and saw the creation of 16 new funds during 2018, pushing our number of funds to 209.

“That’s a good milestone to make note of, passing the 200 funds mark,” Foundation Treasurer Mike Fleetwood said. “I think it shows our growth and the community’s confidence in our work.”

The Foundation created its first fund, the Don and Emmylou Bollinger Endowed Scholarship Fund in 1993. The Foundation now invests nearly $11 million in assets and manages more than $12 million in overall assets. Since our first grants paid in 1994, the Foundation has awarded more than $6 million in grants and scholarships as we live out our motto of “Together We Grow Tomorrows.”

Although gifts to the Foundation were on track to pass the $598,545.33 given in 2017, donations received a boost in the last quarter of the year with Lilly Endowment Inc. launching its GIFT VII initiative in October. Giving in December alone totaled $312,145.31. The latest iteration of Lilly Endowment’s Giving Indiana Funds for Tomorrow initiative made $500,000 in match funds available for gifts made into community funds, also known as unrestricted funds.

Gifts to new or existing community funds earned match dollars on a 2-to-1 basis. The Foundation had two years to meet its goal but claimed all of those match dollars by the end of the year – in just 10 weeks. Donations through the GIFT VII matching funds initiative saw donations made into eight existing community funds and the creation of six new community funds.

Claiming all $500,000 of the match dollars for community funds means the Foundation’s unrestricted pot of assets will grow by $750,000 once all GIFT VII pledges are paid and match dollars are released into the investment pool, President & CEO Dan Davis said.

"With an estimated grant rate of 4 percent, that could mean an additional $30,000 in unrestricted grant funds for use across Jackson County annually,” he added.

During 2018, the Foundation awarded a total of $534,416.70 in grants and scholarships, including $90,811.42 in scholarship awards and $443,605.28 in all other grants.

Community funds provided $54,333 during the Fall Grant cycle for 16 grants throughout Jackson County. Some of those grants will help build a one-mile walking trail, install signage and create a wildflower habitat at Countryside Park in Crothersville; fund a toddler recreational program at Boys & Girls Club of Seymour; help fund KidsFest 2019; replace fire hoses for Hamilton Township Volunteer Fire Department; and help preserve the historic Medora Brick Co. site in Carr Township.

Community funds also provided $28,000 in Impact Grant funds for three projects.

They included:

- $10,000 to the City of Seymour and Seymour Main Street that helped leverage a $590,000 federal grant through the Indiana Office of Community and Rural Affairs for a streetscape project that will reshape One Chamber Square and link it to the new Crossroads Community Park.

- $10,000 to the Jackson County Canine Shelter project that was used as match dollars for the fund. That building is now under construction in Brownstown.

- And $8,000 to the Jackson County Board of Commissioners and Fort Vallonia Days Association that helped leverage a $225,000 federal grant for restoration of the historic Joe Jackson Hotel. The restored hotel will serve as a community center.

“We’re excited about the year we had in 2018,” Davis said. “We saw a strong year in terms of giving to the Foundation, and, in turn, we feel like our granting back into our community will make a strong, positive difference in the lives of many who call Jackson County home.”

The Foundation’s work is about more than paying out grants and scholarships, creating new endowments and seeking donations, however.

The staff also collaborates with many partners across the community, including the Jackson County Education Coalition (a supporting organization) and its On My Way Pre-K program, the Jackson County Industrial Development Corp. and its Workforce Partnership program, Jackson County United Way, Leadership Jackson County and many others. The staff also works with regional and state partners, including those in the EcO Network of 10 southeast Indiana counties and the Indiana Philanthropy Alliance.
Take action now to write your will. It’s one of the most important documents you’ll ever sign.

Unfortunately, many people put them off, rely on them solely, attempt to write them on their own, fail to keep them updated or forget to inform loved ones where their wills are stored.

The Community Foundation of Jackson County hopes you might find the following tips and suggestions helpful as you consider making, or perhaps revising, your will. It’s an important document that can help ensure your wishes to help your family, your church and your favored causes and charities are met.

Take action

The worst thing you can do in creating a will is to procrastinate. We can keep waiting for a more convenient time, but the years have a way of slipping by. A will delayed is often one not done.

Write it

Now is the time -- while you are able and capable -- to write your will. It could go a long way toward ensuring the charities you support now continue to benefit from your generosity.

As an example, a Seymour couple recently took steps to prepare their estate plan. As a result, they established a donor advised fund at the Foundation that will benefit their favorite local charities for the next two generations and beyond.

In another recent case, a Driftwood Township resident took steps to revise an existing will and set up several funds at the Foundation that will be funded through their estate but not until then.

Short of establishing a fund, you can also ensure that your will can benefit your favorite charities by making bequests to any of the endowed funds administered by the Foundation that make annual grants to local agencies. They include Boys & Girls Club, Girls Inc., the Foundation, Jackson County History Center, Jackson County Public Library and others.

Find help

Saving a few dollars by writing your own will or using a mass-produced generic form found online may not provide the peace of mind and confidence you and your family deserve. Nothing can replace the benefits of a face-to-face meeting with a good estate-planning attorney who asks the right questions and who knows how to draft a will that meets the specific laws of Indiana or your current state of residence.

Ask a trusted friend, your banker, accountant or pastor to recommend an attorney if you don’t have one.

Review, keep it fresh

One thing’s certain -- things change. Children grow up. New laws are passed or tax codes changed, as we saw in December 2017 with passage of the new federal tax code. All can affect estate planning. New developments can occur regarding health issues and financial resources.

Frankly, an outdated will can create more problems for your survivors than it solves. It’s a good idea to review your will annually. Keep it current.

Share its location

A will is worthless unless it can be located and recorded at your death. Yet many people die with a “lost” will. Be sure to put it in a safe place, but also let someone else know where it can be found. Tell one or more loved ones or a trusted friend. Make sure someone knows where the original is kept.

The Community Foundation of Jackson County wants you and your loved ones to be protected with a good, up-to-date estate plan, and we have an excellent Estate Planning Guide to share with you. Call us or e-mail us -- the guide is available at no cost or obligation. It can be a helpful guide when talking with your attorney.
These grants are funded by Unrestricted and Field of Interest endowments, and are selected by a grant committee consisting of Community Foundation Board members and other members of the community.

Foundation 101: The 5 P’s of wise giving

Wise giving is about more than just the amount you give. It’s more than just the check you write occasionally to Girls Inc., Community Provisions or the Community Foundation of Jackson County.

Wise giving is thinking about how philanthropy and giving can be a part of your life and afterward through gifts to endowed funds. Thinking ahead to what you want to achieve with your giving and what’s most important. Moving from being a reactive donor to a proactive philanthropist. Here are what the Association of Fundraising Professionals calls the five P’s of wise giving to get you started:

1. Passionate. Before you even think about which charities to support, spend some time identifying what causes are most important to you. Nearly every fundraising solicitation you receive will be appealing, and there are thousands of worthy organizations out there that could use your support. But you can’t give to them all. So take some time to consider issues that move you the most. Perhaps it’s the environment. Maybe healthcare? Perhaps housing? How about education? Children perhaps? Try to get as specific as possible and identify two or three. But maybe it’s your community in general. The more passionate you are about the cause, the more likely you are to get involved beyond just giving.

2. Proactive. You’ve identified the causes about which you are most passionate. But don’t wait to be asked by organizations that work on those causes. Go out and find appropriate charities that can connect you to those causes. There are some great resources online for such a search, starting with Guidestar, Charity Navigator and the Better Business Bureau. Identify several groups you’d consider. The staff at the Community Foundation of Jackson County can also help guide you, especially with giving intended to stay here at home to benefit local organizations and projects.

3. Prepare. Once you have a list of organizations, it’s time to learn more about them. You probably have a good sense of them simply by being proactive and identifying them, but you should be fully prepared and have the right information. Get an overview of the organization, its mission and its programs. Financial data is also helpful. Look at a charity’s cost of fundraising, its overall budget and whether it runs a deficit. Look for signs of consistent management and costs over several years. Spend a little time volunteering at an organization. This can give you insight about the organization.

4. Plan. Many donors take their time when making a purchase. Yet when it comes to giving their money away, they often do so quickly or on a whim. So once you have prepared a list of charities with which you are comfortable, spend a few minutes deciding how and how much you want to give. It doesn’t have to be too detailed or be an exact amount, just enough to give yourself a general idea. And don’t feel locked into it if you want to give more. Deciding on when to give is also important. Nearly half of all charitable giving occurs in the last three months of the year. But giving during the rest of the year is critical too, as some charities often struggle for funds in spring and summer.

5. Powerful. Give for the maximum impact possible, which means knowing all of your giving options. The Foundation can help donors review those options.

For information about how you can make a donation to any of the 209 funds administered by the Foundation or how you might start a new fund, call Dan Davis, President & CEO, at 812-523-4483, or send an email to president@cfjacksoncounty.org.
Jim Johnson of C&J Seating of Marysville, Ohio, installs new seats at the Royal Off-The-Square Theatre in Brownstown. A 2018 President's Grant from the Foundation and a grant from the Janet L. and Gary F. Myers Charitable Fund helped finance the project.

The Lilly Endowment Community Scholarship Program began in 1997. It was created to “raise the level of educational attainment in Indiana and increase awareness of the potential of Indiana’s community foundations to improve the quality of life of the state’s residents.” The Community Foundation of Jackson County currently has 4 Lilly Endowment Community Scholars attending Indiana colleges. The program provides full tuition, fees, and a stipend for books and equipment for four years of undergraduate study, full time basis, leading to a baccalaureate degree at any Indiana public or private college or university accredited by the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools.

Lilly Endowment Inc. offered The Community Foundation of Jackson County an opportunity to help Hoosiers make an impact in our communities, just in time for the holidays and year-end giving during 2018. And the community responded.

Gifts created six new community funds. Eight existing community funds grew. And the future of the Foundation’s grant-making grew along with those new and existing funds.

The Lilly Endowment GIFT VII program provided matching dollars on a $2-to-$1 basis to help build what are called community or unrestricted endowments that generate grants for projects, programs and agencies across Jackson County.

The Foundation had a little more than two years in which to earn $500,000 in match dollars. The community’s generosity helped the Foundation crush that opportunity in a little less than two months. We claimed the last remaining match dollars on Dec. 31 with two gifts.

Once all those pledges are paid and the match dollars put to work, our grant-making should increase by an estimated $30,000 annually, helping fund the Fall Grant cycle, Impact Grants and Classroom Education Grants.

Our Board of Directors and Lilly Endowment are committed to helping grow these impactful community funds so that through prudent stewardship more money is available to help fund the needs of local projects, local programs and local agencies. Essentially, local people.

The Foundation has funded more than $6 million in grants throughout the Jackson County community since 1994. During 2017, for instance, community grants provided school supplies for children in Brownstown, Crothersville, Medora and Seymour; funded weekend sack lunches for area school children; and others assisted the Jackson County Community Theatre, Reins to Recovery and Jackson County United Way.

Impact grants in 2017 and 2018 are assisting the fight against poverty and substance abuse and providing match dollars for the historic Joe Jackson Hotel preservation project in Vallonia, the Jackson County Canine Shelter project in Brownstown and the One Chamber streetscape project in Seymour.

The 2018 Fall Grant cycle brought the approval of 16 grants, including those that will build a walking trail and butterfly garden at Countryside Park in Crothersville, help repave the basketball court at the town park in Medora and help build sidewalks at the Jackson County History Center in Brownstown.

Yet, again, some grant applications were rejected for lack of grant funds.

In the future, thanks to the generosity of donors who responded so well to the GIFT VII initiative, perhaps that shortfall will lessen.

Foundation Board Member Tom Lantz speaks about the importance of community funds and the Foundation’s ability to make a difference in the community. Lantz established The Thomas J. Lantz/Montgomery Elsner & Pardieck Community Endowment in May 2002.

“I would encourage all donors to set up community funds or make donations to existing community funds to give the Foundation maximum flexibility in meeting the needs of the community,” Lantz said. “It truly is the best way for the Foundation and the community to respond to needs of our neighbors.”

Because there is no direction provided by the donor, community gifts can be among the toughest to receive, but our donors tell us they are among the most rewarding.

Mike and Ardith Fleetwood created a community endowment in April 2015. Mike Fleetwood, the Foundation’s treasurer, said they, too, chose to create a community fund because of the potential impact on the community and the flexibility that they provide.

“These funds are how a Foundation can have a big impact on a community issue,” he said.

The flexibility provided by such funds enables the Foundation to address future community needs in perpetuity. Because every community is a fluid, changing entity, we are unable to foresee specifically its future needs. Income from community funds is used by the Foundation to help nonprofit organizations meet current funding needs and opportunities and to respond to emerging community needs.

Some recent examples include leveraging such dollars for the Jackson County Learning Center building project, a grant to help build Heritage Park at Brownstown and a grant to help with flood relief following 2008 flooding in Medora.

How can you help make an impact here at home? Your tax-deductible gift to the Foundation can make a gift that continues to pay dividends in perpetuity.
“Donors don’t give to institutions. They invest in ideas and people in whom they believe.”

A volunteer from Cummins Inc. helps fill bags with food for Gleaner’s Food Bank
For years Seymour Oktoberfest Inc. has provided grants to the community from its income generated through the annual festival that fills downtown city streets with fun, food and activities.

It’s long been a way of paying back to the community that supports Seymour Oktoberfest.

In the past, Seymour Oktoberfest Inc. has made grants to various nonprofits in Jackson County, purchased items such as the bleachers used by the City of Seymour for community events and supported other local festivals such as the Crossroads Acoustic Festival.

The Seymour Oktoberfest board of directors remains committed to supporting the communities of Jackson County.

With that in mind, the organization created a community fund in 2018 at the Community Foundation of Jackson County. The $25,000 gift was matched by $50,000 available through the GIFT VII initiative funded through Lilly Endowment Inc. and administered by the Foundation.

The Seymour Oktoberfest Community Endowment will make grants into the community in the name of Seymour Oktoberfest through the Foundation’s Fall Grant cycle. Because the fund is endowed, only earnings on the fund will be spent, allowing the fund to finance grants in perpetuity.

“For our organization, the Seymour Oktoberfest Community Endowment is a great opportunity to emphasize our commitment to promoting community cooperation and progress in Jackson County,” said Ben Stahl, President of Seymour Oktoberfest Inc.

“Even more so, the endowment fund is about securing our legacy,” Stahl added. “Thanks to the support of the community, our festival is entering its 47th year (in 2019). We are blessed to have reached this milestone, and we hope to carry this tradition on for many years to come. Through the endowment fund, we are making a commitment to having a positive impact on Jackson County even if our festival one day comes to an end.”

The Foundation of Jackson County is in a good position to receive grant applications, review them and help make certain that grant dollars help advance life and help make a difference in Jackson County.

The Foundation of Jackson County is in a good position to receive grant applications, review them and help make certain that grant dollars help advance life and help make a difference in Jackson County.

The Seymour Oktoberfest Community Endowment will make its first grants during the Fall Grant cycle in 2020. New funds are given a full year to grow before paying out their first grants.

It helps protect the original gift's value over the years.

The Seymour Oktoberfest Inc. gift to the Foundation came through the organization's granting process.

“We are happy that the Oktoberfest Fund could benefit from the GIFT VII initiative, a generous opportunity made available from the folks at Lilly Endowment Inc.,” Foundation President Dan Davis said.

Seymour Oktoberfest Inc. intends to make future gifts to the fund, but others can donate to the fund as well.

For information about how you can make a donation to any of the 209 funds administered by the Foundation or how you might start a new fund, call Dan Davis, President & CEO, at 812-523-4483, or send an email to president@cfjacksoncounty.org.

The Community Foundation of Jackson County provided a $10,000 Impact Fund in 2018 to serve as match dollars for new donations to the Jackson County Canine Shelter Fund.

“We are very appreciative of the Community Foundation’s help and guidance since we started our project,” said Debbie Hackman, part of a committee formed to help bring about construction of the dog shelter. “It’s a dream come true for the committee members that have worked so hard on this project the past three years.”

Work did, indeed, get under way on the shelter, being constructed near the Jackson County Jail. While more than $209,000 has been raised to allow for construction of the shelter to begin, $66,000 is still needed to finish it, Hackman said. Those funds will go toward interior work and landscaping. Hackman said construction of the shelter, which started in the fall, remains on track.

“It has walls, it has a floor and it has insulation,” she said. It will open with 36 kennels. “Each could hold two dogs if necessary plus five isolation pens and an area that accommodates mama dogs and their pups,” Hackman said.

Hackman said Gil Hoene and Bob Gillaspy are the brains behind making sure the building gets completed and is done right.

“We still hope to be in by early summer (2019), but it all depends on the weather,” she said. The purpose of the shelter is to give abused, abandoned, neglected and homeless dogs a safe and warm place to stay until they find a permanent home.

The shelter’s beginnings can be traced to a canine control program started by the Jackson County Sheriff’s Department in 2008. Red Sky Rescue, located in Owen Township, was contracted as a temporary solution to house dogs brought in by the program until they could be placed in homes.

Ruth Riley, who established Red Sky Rescue, and other volunteers will continue to care for and house dogs until the shelter can be completed and becomes operational.

The sheriff’s department will oversee operations of the dog shelter and implement a program allowing inmates from the jail to assist in caring for the shelter and the dogs. The use of inmate labor also will allow non-violent offenders the opportunity to take on responsibilities and avoids having to pay employees to operate and maintain the shelter.

The project has seen a tremendous grassroots community effort. Donations have ranged from pennies dropped into donations boxes placed in businesses throughout Jackson County to an anonymous donor who made two gifts totaling $40,000.

“We had a couple of pretty big donors, but it’s just individuals,” Hackman said. “We’ve gotten a little from businesses. The very beginning, I had this vision that we would have a big corporate sponsor step up, but that didn’t happen. A couple of big donations and a lot of little donors, it just added up.”

That grassroots support impressed the Foundation. “Our Grant Committee and Board of Directors have been following this effort and have been impressed with the drive, passion and far-ranging community support,” Foundation President & CEO Dan Davis said.

A $30,000 anonymous gift triggered the Founda-tion’s Impact Grant as that gift pushed the fund closer toward its $200,000 original goal.

“The idea was to use the match dollars from the Impact Grant to leverage the gifts needed to push the canine shelter from a dream to a reality,” Foundation Board Chair Priscilla Wischmeier said.

But that anonymous gift, along with a second sizeable donation from the same person, also prompted the appreciation of those driving the effort to build the facility.

“The Dog Shelter Committee is very thankful for these anonymous gifts,” Hackman said. “The donations are definitely appreciated and were a motivator for the tired committee members. The only regret is that we can’t tell the responsible party ‘Thank you’ or how much their generosity means to us and our project in person. Maybe if they read this article they will know that we are very grateful. God bless them.”

Using inmates to handle the dogs is expected to net at least three positive outcomes – keeping down operating costs, building job skills and interpersonal skills for those inmates assigned to the shelter and finding new homes for the dogs, Sheriff Rick Meyer said.

“If we can use inmates as volunteers at the shelter, that would be a good thing,” Meyer said. “It would be good for the inmates to have a job and responsibilities caring for the dogs and keeping things at the shelter clean.”

Time spent working and exercising the dogs is expected to give inmates a change from prison life and help make them more relaxed when they work with the animals.

According to a story from Clear the Shelters, a study published in the Journal of Behavioral Medicine showed that human-animal interactions can lead to lower blood pressure and heart rate, two physiological indicators of stress.

Lower stress can ease tensions inside jails with fellow inmates and their jailers.

The story reported that psychologists studying a prison-based animal program in the United Kingdom concluded that working with animals helped inmates develop a deeper sense of responsibility and trust, resulting in enhanced communications between fellow inmates and staff.

The shelter will house up to 75 dogs with the goal of saving and adopting as many of them as possible.

Inmates are expected to work with the animals in the mornings and afternoons to clean kennels, feed the dogs and oversee exercise times. Adoption time for the public will be set at times when no inmates are in the building, Hackman said.

A Fall Grant from the Community Foundation of Jackson County will help build a one-mile walking trail, install signage and create a wildflower habitat at Countryside Park in Crothersville.

The $4,189 grant, funded with earnings from the Immanuel United Church of Christ Vernon Township Community Endowment, the Schneider Nursery Inc. Unrestricted Community Fund, the Potts Family Endowment, the Don Bollinger Memorial Fund and the Jackson County Community Endowment, was awarded to the Town of Crothersville in October 2018.

The project is part of a partnership involving the town, Crothersville High School Science Club and the Oak Heritage Conservancy. The grant was among 16 grants awarded through the Foundation’s Fall Grant program. The grants totaled $54,333.

The Countryside Park project aims to provide access to a safe, off-road nature walking trail, a beautiful community space where everyone is welcomed to spend time, signage and maps to ensure safe access to the trail and a place to connect with youth and others in the community, according to the grant application submitted by Tiffany Reynolds and Danieta Foster of the Crothersville Parks Board.

The application cited Jackson County’s high obesity rate as a factor for building the walking trail and encouraging Vernon Township residents to enjoy the outdoors.

“We want to make this a place where people want to come for fitness, wellness and time together,” Foster said. “We know that nature access can’t solve all of our problems, but we also know that it can help.”

The one-mile trail will be joined by a 15-feet-by-50-feet wildflower habitat that will attract butterflies, other pollinators and people to Countryside Park.

This is the second phase of a larger effort to improve the park, according to the application. In the past two years, the town has helped add playground equipment and a picnic area. Future plans include building a shelterhouse and building a sidewalk that would link Countryside Park to the town’s sidewalks. Now, town sidewalks end half a mile from the park.
The Foundation strives to help nonprofits and local communities make a positive impact on their community in a way that donors intended with their gifts.

“The Foundation’s Grant Committee, Board of Directors and staff work hard to ensure that our unrestricted and field of interest earnings provide as large an impact as possible throughout Jackson County,” said Dan Davis, President & CEO.

The Grant Committee strives to ensure that grant dollars reach across Jackson County, added Priscilla Wischmeier, chair of the Foundation’s Board of Directors. She also serves as chair of the Grant Committee.

“This year we’ve approved grants that will assist projects and programs in Brownstown, Crothersville, Dudleytown, Hamilton Township, Medora, Redding Township and Seymour as well as places in between,” Wischmeier said.

Earnings from unrestricted and field of interest funds are generated through prudent investment of the endowed gifts from individuals and businesses. A portion of the earnings from those investments remain in the endowed funds to protect against inflation while other earnings become grant dollars that are awarded through the Fall Grant Cycle, Impact Grants and Classroom Education Grants.
